

Fran Moeller Gatins

Like everything on Earth, stones have a vibration, an energy that can act as a tuning fork for a person sensitive to it. They have been used for healing since ancient times and can bring out qualities associated with them in jewelry wearers. Fran says you should always hold a piece of jewelry before you buy it and pay attention to any feelings, positive or negative that come up.

“Making jewelry is, in many ways most satisfying, of my explorations/experiments in art”, Fran says. “It is like creating a puzzle for myself that I then have to solve: working with the energies of the stones, finding the best way to bring the positive forward in combinations of energy, beauty and balance, along with the practicalities of how to do it. It is an ever-changing challenge. Seeing one of my necklaces look beautiful on someone AND make them feel good too, that is my ultimate goal.”

Fran is a published author , talented musician and artist. .